I am so confused, is it really hard to tell the difference between cancer, pneumonia, and fungus infections in the lungs? If so, how do the doctors know how to get the correct diagnosis? Do you know if the american medical association or any other organizations has a protocol that doctors are to follow to rule out different diseases and different stages of these diseases? IF so, where can I locate this information? Thank you!